GEORGE WILLIAM CHILDS.

The death of Mr. Childs had been expected at any time for a week past, so that it was not such a shock as it might have been if it had come more suddenly. Nevertheless, it will be sad news to a great many people; for Mr. Childs had a remarkable capacity for making and keeping friends.

Here in Colorado Springs, he has been known as the man who gave assistance when it was needed, for the construction of the Printers' Home, and Mr. Childs, together giving one-eighth of the whole sum, necessary for the building. His benevolence in other places was numerous and well placed, and he had the satisfaction of doing good with his money while he lived, and of being honored accordingly. It was he who gave the American memorial window in Westminster Abbey. He was the friend of Grant and of Garfield, and of many others of our great men. He was exceedingly successful in business, and attributed much of his success to the confidence and zeal of his staff, who are said to have regarded him as a personal friend, and not simply as an employer.

Mr. Childs had a collection of rare and curious objects of interest, and particularly a fine book, which will probably find a place in some public institution where their value will be appreciated. He gave away many treasures of this kind, and most of his intimate friends have memorabilia of him which are valuable both in themselves and from their associations.

He was a good man, a good husband, and a good citizen, and his loss will be felt, not only in Colorado, but throughout the country.

HOW MANY "CUCKOOS"?

Next Tuesday we shall know as exactly as is possible, how many "cuckoos" there are in the House. The resolution reported by Mr. McCreary, concerning Minister Stevens and President Harrison, and concerning the policy of infamy, is to be voted on, and we shall see just how far a blind devotion to Cleveland will go.

We do not suppose that a House will vote for the McCreary resolution as "cuckoos" are simple. Mr. McCreary may succeed in making a party question of this resolution, and inducing some Democrats to vote for it on that ground. But if the Democrats do make this a party question they will make the worst mistake of their lives. They will come pretty near to proving that a Democratic congressman cannot afford to be a patriot. They certainly will prove that they have no proper conception of the powers and the dignity of Congress, and that they are willing to be the subservient tools of the man in the White House.

It is not probable that Mr. McCreary has brought up this resolution just at this time, and that the Committee on Rules has ordered a prompt vote on it, without being pretty sure of its passage; so that we expect the resolution will be adopted, and the Democratic party committed, body, boots and breeches, to an endorsement of Japan and of Cleveland's unpopularity and outrageous usurpation of power in sending a minister accredited to a government which by secret instructions was directed to undermine and destroy.

Anything more is needed to speed the march of the Democracy through a slaughter house into an open grave, we don't know just what it is. We think the forces already arrayed ought to be enough to bury it for a generation. But it is idle to attempt to set bounds to the folly and incapacity for common sense and cumulative blundering of the party and the President now in power; and there is a chance to add to their record of incapacity they will doubtless make the most of it.

The Cripple Creek pamphlet just issued by John W. Prouty & Co. is a credit to that firm, and will undoubtedly do a great deal to attract capital to the Cripple Creek district. It is not a "boom" pamphlet in any sense of the word, but a careful, conservative account of affairs as they stand, substantiating its statements by figures, and stating nothing but approved facts. A pamphlet of this kind is likely to have more influence with investors than any highly-colored prospectus. It will have a wide circulation and should produce an excellent effect.

Admiral Benham's policy of unconditional mediation has been rejected by official action of a kind which will gain the approval of all true Americans. It is difficult to understand why this was not done long ago. Admirals de Gama, and his superior, de Melo, were rebels without a country, and had no recognized rights among the established powers of the world. Their acts against the commerce of America and Europe were piracy, and it is most astonishing that they should have been permitted for so long a time. But the action so unaccountably delayed, when finally taken, was vigorous and effective, and will, we hope, put an end to the near future to the ridiculous revolution which has done so much harm to Brazil. The fact of the surrender to the American admiral is assured. We have no use for de Gama. We do not want him for a pet, and we do not want him to hang. As a State prisoner he would be expensive and entirely useless. The ships which constitute his sovereignty belong to Brazil, and in our hands they would be simply stolen property to be restored to the rightful owner.

CLEVELAND VS. THE CONSTITUTION.

When President Cleveland came to the conclusion that the right and proper thing for this country to do was to use the Provisional Government in Hawaii and restore Mrs. Dominis to the throne, there was just one constitutional way for him to accomplish the end which he considered desirable; namely, to call the attention of Congress to the matter, and urge them to authorize him to use the forces of the United States for the purpose of effecting the change.

Instead of doing this the President preferred to undertake the job alone. At first he seems to have had the idea of instructing our representative to use the United States troops in effecting the restoration, but having discovered by the first of December that he had no constitutional power to do this, and that such action might lead to his impeachment, he instructed Mr. Wilson to go ahead and effect a restoration without the use of force, at the same time giving to the Hawaiian Provisional Government the impression that he would use force if necessary. Fortunately for Hawaii and for this country, President Dole declined to be bluffed, and the policy of infamy collapsed on the spot. If Mr. Cleveland had got the authorization of Congress before he tried to restore the Queen he would have saved himself humiliation and would have obeyed the Constitution of the United States.

At the present time a large deficit in government revenues confronts the country. The constitutional way to raise money to meet this deficit is for Congress to pass a law providing either for additional current revenue or for borrowing the necessary money by the sale of government bonds. Mr. Cleveland's way is to go ahead and issue the bonds without Congressional authority, and without consultation even with the financiers with whom the bonds are to be placed. The result is that the proposed loan is looked upon with disfavor in financial circles, and that there are grave doubts, to say the least, as to the legality of the issue.

These are only two of the instances which go to show that Mr. Cleveland is either ignorant of the provisions of the Constitution or is resolved to overlook them. There are doubtless a few people in this country, who if they must choose either with the Constitution or with Mr. Cleveland, would prefer to keep the President and the Constitution go. If this Congress does not soon inform Mr. Cleveland of this fact, we shall expect a Congress next fall that will give him to understand it in very plain terms.

Never was snow more beautiful, or to most people more welcome, than that which fell Saturday morning. It is the first fall we have had to amount to anything, and will do an untold amount of good, replenishing the reservoirs of our water supply up in the mountains, refreshing the grasses on the plains, preserving our lawns, and putting the ground in better condition for spring.

The good spirit of conciliation seems to be in the air at Cripple Creek, and we sincerely hope that everything will be arranged satisfactorily so that no strike may take place. As the interests involved would be injuriously affected by any altercation.

Since the New York City Congressional election, it is useless for Mr. Lem Quigg to write his middle name with a Y. It is and will remain.

British Hopes of the Wilson Bill.
Bradford traders are against saying how the new tariff will benefit Bradford trade. But this is mere quibbling beside the fact that now is the time to prepare the way for opening American trade. No sympathy as to the advantage to the American of free wool can overcome figures which are obtained by careful calculation of prices under the forthcoming, present, and past prices enforced by American tariffs. Bradford traders need have no difficulty in expressing their opinions.—Bradford Observer, Dec. 5, 1893.

The Wilson bill proposes to put wool on the free list. This will make a splendid opening for British woolen goods. As it is, they compare unfavorably with the American made, particularly of the finer qualities in price.

The Wilson bill gives satisfaction, tending to increase the trade between the United States and Canada.—Burlington Evening Dispatch, Dec. 5, 1893.
The small ring of capitalists who reposed upon McKinism to shut out Western States from the United States, and who have since discovered that they were badly out in their reasoning, are naturally "jumping" against the Wilson bill. The market has been thrown into a virtual convulsion by the extension of the vote making in America.—Ozark Western Yell., Dec. 29, 1893.

A CODE TO COLORADO SPRINGS.

By J. D. BILLYBROOK.
O far-famed city of Pike's Peak,
Where invalids unnumbered seek
The touch of Zephyrus, sudden fair,
Entranced in sunshine and light air!
Where one might sit and dream of life,
Feeling the gases with ozone rife!
Where, every summer time, appear
The tourist swarms from far and near:
Where wealth and culture make their home,
And all good people love to come—
O city, much admired by me,
I have a word to say to thee:
Thy schools and churches, as they stand,
May wither with any in the land;
Thy cottage-homes are fair and sweet,
Thy streets are broad, and smooth and neat,
But there is one place for our feet
People who wish to walk abroad,
Must take the middle of the road,
Unless they are content to travel
Over beds of coarse and flinty gravel.
O City Fathers, if you can,
I hope you will devise some plan
By which good sidewalks may be laid,
Where young and old can promenade,
It is your wisdom that controls,
Will you have mercy on our soles?

THE TIDAL WAVE.

After last Tuesday's election in New York City, when the Republicans carried by 98,200 a majority that had gone Democratic in 1892 by over 8,000, the Sun figured out what the composition of the next Congress would be if the same loss in the Democratic vote were felt over the country. Here are the results of its figuring:

Democrats in present Congress.....	215
Republicans in present Congress.....	129
Populists in present Congress.....	12
Total.....	356
Necessary for a majority.....	178
Democratic margin over a majority.....	39

But if the same tidal wave of protest against Democratic cowardice, treachery, and incapacity at Washington, as swept across the fourteenth New York district day before yesterday, had affected every district in the country which was now represented by a Democrat, the result would have been that which is here set forth:

Democrats in the new Congress.....	129
Republicans and Populists.....	226
Total.....	355
Necessary for a majority.....	178
Democratic short of a majority.....	39

Such is the "design," and remember, if you please, that the percentage of loss which we have here taken as a yardstick with which to measure the revision of public sentiment throughout the country, as occasioned by the treachery and the Cleveland administration and its agents and lackeys in Congress, was incurred on Tuesday in New York City's election for the restoration of the Democratic organization, the steady support of its Democratic allies, and under any honest and earnest effort in national affairs, the absolute certainty of its Democratic majority, sufficient and with thousands to spare.

The same cause of dissatisfaction as prevailed in New York City last Tuesday prevails in most other parts of the country; so that it is probable that if the election that day had been general, we should now have a Congress-elect that would be Republican by nearly two to one.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

Another effort is now in progress to get the Colorado legislature to adjourn amicably. The Senate has consented to consider bills sent over from the House, and will probably pass a few of the harmless ones, among them the tax-penalty bill, and the registration bill. As to that registration bill, if there is to be a house-to-house registration anywhere in the State, we want it here in Colorado Springs, and the bill should be amended to apply to cities of less than 5,000 people and more than 1,000. In fact, the limit might be put down to 500, so as to take in Leadville and Cripple Creek, without doing any harm.

As we understand the matter, the Senate has not agreed to pass a bill, but in House it is only to consider them; and certainly it will not pass any bill that would have a tendency to injure the credit of the State.

It is no doubt there will be some disappointment that the Senate has consented to act at all; but we presume the majority of Senators came to the conclusion that that was the shortest way out of the difficulty, the quickest way to secure an adjournment. The people of this country may be sure that Senators McGovern and Leidy would approve no measure which would injure our interests at home or the interests of the State in general. The probability is that the Senate will pass only a very few measures, and will put the rest to sleep. Under the present arrangement, there ought to be a final adjournment within a few days.

So far as the power of the Democratic House is concerned, the Wilson Deficiency and Destruction bill is an assured fact. The vote, 20 to 24, showed a majority somewhat larger than the conservative estimates of the friends of the bill, and is sufficient to fix whatever name there may be from the bill upon the Democratic party as a whole. The fate of the bill now rests with the Senate. It is a unique fate cannot be safely predicted at the present time, but it is certain that the present form of the bill is such as will be objectionable to many Democratic Senators, and that a vote will not be reached on the bill until it has been considered with a due deliberation.

The movement for international bimetalism which was begun in Boston on Monday is one which is likely to grow to large proportions. It is headed by President Andrews, whom we know as a sincere friend of silver, and the members of the Western States could not, "let together" under any better leader or under any better auspices.

NO PAY WITHOUT AN APPROPRIATION.

Ordinarily it is not wise nor proper for a newspaper to take issue on a question with an officer of the law; but when a State has a Populist Attorney General, the case is altered. Mr. Engley has made a very peculiar decision with regard to the pay of legislators, and we believe his decision is not good in law. He alleges that the legislators can be and ought to be paid for their "services" during the special session, without any appropriation made by them; and in support of this position he advances the theory that the appropriations for legislators are virtually continuous, and that the mere fact of their meeting involves their payment.

The State Constitution says on this point: "The general appropriation bill shall embrace nothing but appropriations for ordinary expenses of the Executive, Legislative and Judicial departments of the State, to wit: on the public debt, and for public schools. A. prior appropriations shall be made by separate bills, each embracing but one subject." This language plainly requires that for the expenses of the Legislative department an appropriation bill shall be passed, as well as for expenses of the executive and judicial departments, the public debt, and the public schools. Probably Mr. Engley would not pretend that funds would be available for the public debt or the public schools without any appropriation by the legislature, but these stand on the same constitutional footing as the legislative bill.

It is one of the fundamental principles of our Anglo-Saxon government, a principle over the world that public money shall not be paid out without appropriation by the people's representatives in the legislature. It was a wrong opinion on this point that cost Charles C. Bonney, the point is so clear that it does not require discussion.

The present case differs from ordinary cases in that it is their own pay for which these far the legislators have made no appropriation. We do not see that the fact alters the bearing of the general principle, however, for if a majority of the legislature cannot be got to vote their own pay, the chances are that they don't deserve any.

COLORADO CULINARY.

An opinion is prevalent that the mountain air does not conduce to culinary art. For one thing it stimulates the appetite too much, and as the struggle for existence in its more prosaic aspect engages the attention, the individual has less time and thought for the more refined circumstances of life. When one's life is passed under the auspices of a French chef, and the molecules of brain and muscle are evolved out of trifles and pate de foie gras and cafe noir, one's thoughts naturally revert to the code d'honneur and the code galant. But when a man's diet is salt, spice, and Arroz, and not an over-abundance of those, his mental activity is more likely to occupy itself with such practical realities as the silver question and the social and climatic advantages of Colorado.

We are however pleased to note that there is one man in the State, who, even in hard times, can rise from prosaic details to soar in realms of civility and romance. No stronger proof of sincerity can be given than a willingness to risk one's life, and by his challenge to fight a duel, Col. A. C. Flax has won a place which no citizen of the State will have the right or the desire to dispute with him.

We do not of course court for a moment that the combat will take place. Senator Boyd is not ready to risk himself for the public good, someone else must be found. The point of civ-

SOUND SENSE ON THE BOND ISSUE.

One of the best speeches yet made on the proposed bond issue was that of Senator Sherman on Tuesday. He made it clear that the Secretary of the Treasury has uncoupled power to issue bonds for the maintenance of specie payments. He made it equally clear that the Secretary has no right to issue the bonds for any other purpose. In this connection he said:

"I do not believe that it is within the power of the Secretary of the Treasury to take the money received from these bonds and to apply it to current expenses. I do not see any authority of law for that. Therefore, I say to gentlemen on the other side that they must provide for the deficiency in some other way than by tampering with the money got from the bonds, for one purpose only. They must provide other funds if necessary to make good deficiency in the current revenue. It is perfectly clear, water, you go to the utmost in standing by the present Secretary of Treasury in regard to his plain and awful duty, say that you think (meaning the Democrats) are determined against our vote, and wish to keep our state and determined opposition to repeal the present revenue laws of the United States, you must provide the mode and means of meeting any deficiency that will accrue. Speaking for myself alone, I say that you cannot in reason expect us to provide a mode to meet deficiencies in the current revenue, which, as a member of the minority, I feel bound to do everything that I can to sustain the public credit. I regard it as being as sacred in the hands of Grover Cleveland and John G. Carlisle as in the hands of a Republican administration. I will vote any measure of relief that is desired, and that is clearly right, and consistent with the same loyalty and respect as would be for any measure of a Republican administration. But when you are addressing the Democrats bring about a state of affairs, and persist at a time of grave distress and difficulty, in a woe-ease change of revenue laws and in the disturbance of our financial system, affecting every branch of industry, then you are bound to provide the measures necessary to supply the deficiency."

WILL IT PASS?

The passage of the Wilson bill in the House of Representatives by a majority of 61 is a pretty plain indication that the Democratic party as a whole, including its Populist wing and tail feathers, is practically united upon that measure. The New York Democrats, even with Joss Crocker's aid, were able to muster only about twenty votes against the bill, and a large number of Democrats who had opposed the bill during the debate voted for it on its final passage. Among these were Boardman of Louisiana, Clarke and Wheeler of Alabama, Cookran and Coombs of New York, and Wooster of Pennsylvania. A. C. Flax voted for it, including Messrs. Bell and Pence, who had both made strong speeches against the bill.

The measure now goes to the Senate, where it will be debated and thoroughly considered, as it was not in the House. The chances for its passage there are probably better than they were a week ago. Notwithstanding the income tax amendment, the forces of the administration are apparently backing the bill, and this will bring into line some Democratic Senators who might otherwise incline to opposition. The large majority in the House may also have some moral effect. Still further, there may be some disposition on the Republican side to give the Democrats all the rope they want, with the idea that they will sooner hang themselves politically, and on this account Republican opposition to the bill may perhaps not be as persistent and unrelenting as it might be otherwise.

If the Republicans do adopt these tactics we believe they will make a mistake. There is little doubt that the passage of the bill would damn the Democratic party, and for that reason it may seem good politics to forego the use of such obstructive methods as might be resorted to. But when the passage of any measure is a most certain to bring ruin and disaster to hundreds and thousands of their countrymen, to cause the stagnation of industry and the destruction of manufactures, to run the nation into debt, bankruptcy, the treasury, and make it necessary to issue indefinite millions of gold bonds; then, it seems to us the Republican minority in the Senate should exert every means in its power to prevent the passage of the bill.

It was too much to expect that Willie would join in the festivities of "A Propaganda Day" at Honolulu. He doesn't feel like it just now.

A little patriotism at Rio Janeiro is not going to make the American people forget a want of patriotism at Honolulu.

Dvorak, the Gifted Composer, Violinist, Pianist, Musician and Writer; The Boston Composer and Critic—A Talented Trio Who Reside in New York.

Special Correspondence.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Three men, each of them comparable to you, one of them a Poet, possessing the intense energy of the race, another an Irish-American, the grandson of one of the most brilliant of the American men, and the third an American, suggesting in his manner and methods the type of young American men who have been blessed with early opportunities, are attracting attention to the music of the future. The music of this country is not a recent work, a product of this country, but some of them true genius.

These men are Dvorak, who is now regarded, with perhaps a single exception, as the ablest writer of orchestra music now living, and who is at the head of one of the greatest conservatories of music in this country, that one created through the aid

ber. Another one of his trio is Mr. V. Vazou Heibert, who is a grandson of a "uncle" Vazou, himself a musician and the writer of what many believe to be the best story of humorous nature ever written in the English tongue, and so the writer of that exquisitely funny novel "My Andy." The third member of this trio is Regina de Koven, who has achieved not only a name, but a very handsome fortune, by reason of the success which followed the production of three operettas which she has composed, one of which has probably earned more money than any other operetta singing upon the American stage, excepting "Madame." These distinguished music men and women have revealed that their tone-deafness which is enabling those who make a pursuit of music either in composition or instrumental performance to escape from the narrow limitations which it used to impose on those who love it. De Koven is not only a talented composer, but she is also a very competent critic, being singularly free player as a musician of the great theater of the city of New York City as well as a writer upon musical topics for one of the most successful weeklies.

He has a most notable thing in common with the other two mentioned above, excepting the musical and literary talent. He is the associate of a few of our members of the "society of the four arts," and he has received, with something of the distinction we used to cherish to characterize the appearance of the instruments of a pianist, Chopin, in the salons of the great aristocracy. He is, in the best sense of the word, a man of the world and would be taken by those who saw him, not knowing what his achievements were, for a young professional man, and he has those achievements already, a pianist of great success.

Victor Herbert calls nothing for social features. He is a man of sparkling, glowing, nearly perfect and of corresponding muscular proportions—black eyed, well haired, brushing his hair straight up from his broad forehead and with a round face upon which there is always a merry expression, his appearance suggesting in the present day a blooded and a young man.

A few years ago Victor Herbert sang concerts. Then he devoted himself to the violin, and, having now gained the reputation of a virtuoso upon that instrument, and having been appointed by Herr Seidl, assistant conductor of his noble orchestra, Herbert's energy is extraordinary, for, according to the engagements which he has accepted, he has but four months to compose some eighteen musical compositions of his having caught the popular favor as most great as is the "Academic Minuet." Besides that, Mr. Herbert has recently written an opera, which he has great admiration for, and other musical plans and will be produced next season.

Notwithstanding the time entailed this work, Mr. Herbert has accepted the post of editor of that great and wide-famous Gilmore created, so that he is port to be making more money per than any other person whose vocation music, excepting Mr. de Koven, and a young man situated in a fair way to maa large fortune for himself, for he does inherently one characteristic of Samuel which was an inability to care for money.
Dvorak has set the musical critics as cultivated lovers of music to talking great excitement and interest over a recent composition of his. His great composicame to the United States two years ago upon the invitation of Mrs. Thurber to accept the post of director of the conservatory where she and her friends are in the main supporting through their desire for Amercan musical development, and he received for his service $15,000 a year, with 25 months' vacation.

He had been in the United States very long years and was interested in American life as it was suggested by some of the more camp meeting tunes, and especially by the weird and plaintive melodies of the American negroes. And it seemed to him that if the spirit of the melodies was caught by a musician and treated with skill, it would be possible to compose a great symphony which would be regarded as a feat by American in its aspirations and suggestions.

His symphony was first produced a few days ago in New York, and gained a special popularity. Even those who have criticized music have edged about the favor of American music suggestion was in it, while the critics were unkind in their praise of its masterly composition. It is probable that Thomas will write more of these tunes, and now that the great master has died, it is hoped that Americans do not need to go to Europe for music inspiration, it is to be hoped that there will be a swift and successful American or American music composition.
